Foreword

Attention is drawn to the following British Standard on a related subject:

BS 2979, Transliteration of Cyrillic and Greek characters.

The system presented here is the same as that contained in ISO Recommendation R 233:1961, International system for the transliteration of Arabic characters, published by the International Organization for Standardization (ISO), except that it transliterates the character ڃ as ñ instead of g.

A British Standard does not purport to include all the necessary provisions of a contract. Users of British Standards are responsible for their correct application.

Compliance with a British Standard does not of itself confer immunity from legal obligations.
