National foreword

This British Standard has been published under the direction of the Wood Preservation Standards Committee. BS 5666-1 was first published in 1978 as the first Part of a multipart standard dealing with methods for the analysis of wood preservatives and treated timber. The 1978 edition is superseded by this revision and is withdrawn.

This Part 1 of BS 5666 is identical with EN 212:1986 “Wood preservatives. Guide to sampling and preparation of wood preservatives and treated timber for analysis”, published by the European Committee for Standardization (CEN). EN 212 was prepared as a result of discussion in CEN Technical Committee 38 “Methods of test for wood preservatives”, in which the UK participated.

National appendix A gives the constitution of the committee responsible for UK participation in the preparation of this standard and National appendix B gives information on relevant British Standards and UK Regulations relating to the references in the European Standard.

Other Parts of this standard deal with methods of analysis for specific preservatives and treated timber containing them.

Attention is drawn to the use in this standard of the comma as a decimal marker, in accord with European practice.

A British Standard does not purport to include all the necessary provisions of a contract. Users of British Standards are responsible for their correct application.

Compliance with a British Standard does not of itself confer immunity from legal obligations.
