National foreword

This British Standard has been prepared under the direction of the Personal Safety Equipment Standards Policy Committee and is the English language version of EN 170 “Personal eye-protection — Ultraviolet filters — Transmittance requirements and recommended use”, published by the European Committee for Standardization (CEN). EN 170 was produced as a result of international discussions in which the United Kingdom took an active part.

EN 170:1992 incorporates only minor editorial changes to EN 170:1986 but has been approved by CEN Member Bodies under the weighted voting procedures introduced in 1988 to coincide with the introduction of “New Approach” Directives from the Commission of the European Community.

There is no existing equivalent British Standard to EN 170, although reference is made to the absorption of ultraviolet light in BS 2724, BS 2724 will be withdrawn when the appropriate European Standards have been published.

A British Standard does not purport to include all the necessary provisions of a contract. Users of British Standards are responsible for their correct application.

Compliance with a British Standard does not of itself confer immunity from legal obligations.
