National foreword

This British Standard has been prepared under the direction of the Personal Safety Equipment Standards Policy Committee and is the English language version of EN 379:1994 Specification for welding filters with switchable luminous transmittance and welding filters with dual luminous transmittance, including Amendment 1:1998, published by the European Committee for Standardization (CEN).

EN 379 was produced as a result of international discussions in which the United Kingdom took an active part.

There is no existing equivalent British Standard to EN 379. Attention is drawn to BS EN 169:1992 Specification for filters for personal eye-protection equipment used in welding and similar operations, which specifies the requirements for these more traditional and well-established products.

A British Standard does not purport to include all the necessary provisions of a contract. Users of British Standards are responsible for their correct application.

Compliance with a British Standard does not of itself confer immunity from legal obligations.

This European Standard was approved by CEN on 1994-01-07; amendment A1 was approved by CEN on 1998-04-26. CEN members are bound to comply with the CEN/CENELEC Internal Regulations which stipulate the conditions for giving this European Standard the status of a national standard without any alteration.

Up-to-date lists and bibliographical references concerning such national standards may be obtained on application to the Central Secretariat or to any CEN member.

This European Standard exists in three official versions (English, French, German). A version in any other language made by translation under the responsibility of a CEN member into its own language and notified to the Central Secretariat has the same status as the official versions.

CEN members are the national standards bodies of Austria, Belgium, Czech Republic, Denmark, Finland, France, Germany, Greece, Iceland, Ireland, Italy, Luxembourg, Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland and United Kingdom.
