Foreword

This British Standard has been prepared under the authority of the Shipbuilding and Marine Industry Standards Committee and has been developed from a proposal submitted by the British Ship Research Association.

It forms one of a series dealing with deck machinery for ships and provides requirements for the design, construction, safety, performance and acceptance testing of lightly powered and unpowered topping winches.

On board acceptance tests and inspections are described in Appendix A, and information to be supplied by the purchaser in Appendix B.

Other standards in this series are:

BS MA 30, Glossary of terms and graphical symbols for ships' deck machinery.

BS MA 31, Ships' deck machinery — cargo winches.

BS MA 32, Ships' deck machinery — mooring winches.

BS MA 33, Ships' deck machinery — warping winches.

BS MA 34, Ships' deck machinery — capstans.

BS MA 52, Ships' deck machinery — accommodation ladder winches.

This standard makes reference to the following British Standards:

BS 365, Galvanized steel wire ropes for ships.

BS 1486, Lubricating nipples.

BS 1486-1, Lubricating nipples and adaptors for use on machinery and vehicles.

BS 1597, Radio-interference suppression on marine installations.

BS 1856, General requirements for the metal-arc welding of mild steel.

BS 2052, Ropes made from coir, hemp, manila and sisal.

BS 2949, Rotating electrical machines for use in ships.

BS 3399, Transformers for use in ships.

BS 4128, Recommendations for selection, use and care of man-made fibre ropes in marine applications.

BS 6883, Elastomer-insulated cables for fixed wiring in ships.

Certification. Attention is drawn to the certification facilities described on the inside back cover of this standard.

A British Standard does not purport to include all the necessary provisions of a contract. Users of British Standards are responsible for their correct application.

Compliance with a British Standard does not of itself confer immunity from legal obligations.
