Terms and Conditions for Use of CAA Light Aircraft Pilot Licence (LAPL) Medical Certificate Application Process by UK General Medical Practitioners

In the UK, the LAPL medical certificate applicant's General Medical Practitioner (GMP), either in general practice (or employed as a medical officer in the British Army, Royal Navy or Royal Air Force by the Ministry of Defence for general practice duties) is permitted to act as an Aeromedical Examiner (AME) for the issue of a LAPL Medical Certificate. The legal basis for this is under Part-MED.D.035 the European Aviation Safety Agency (EASA) 'Aircrew Regulation' (www.easa.europa.eu see 'Regulations structure') and the UK Air Navigation Order. In addition, EASA has published Acceptable Means of Compliance (AMC) and medical guidance material for Part-MED, also available on the EASA website, in particular Section 4 of Subpart B.

These terms and conditions are intended for GMPs in the UK who wish to issue a LAPL medical certificate.

- 1) The GMP should only undertake LAPL medical examinations/assessments if:
 - they are on the UK General Medical Council (GMC) GP register;
 - they hold a valid licence to practise medicine from the GMC; and
 - they have access to and are able to consult the full GP records of the applicant for the certificate.
- 2) The GMP should therefore only undertake the medical assessments or examinations and issue LAPL medical certificates to persons registered with their general practice and whose medical records they hold.
- 3) A GMP must notify the CAA, using the CAA's online LAPL Medical System, that they are acting as an AME for the purpose of issuing a LAPL medical certificate to their patient.
- 4) The GMP should examine and assess applicants in compliance with the regulations, law, policies, procedures, explanatory material and other guidance on civil aviation matters as issued by EASA and the CAA for the purpose of LAPL medical certification.
- 5) Where an applicant does not meet the requirements, or where the GMP has doubt about an applicant's fitness, relevant medical information should be provided to the applicant to take to an Aeromedical Examiner (AME) or Aeromedical Centre (AeMC) for further assessment.
- 6) A GMP should not change an unfit assessment (including application of limitations) made by an AME/AeMC.
- 7) The CAA reserves the right to audit GMP submissions and LAPL certificate information. All LAPL medical certification examination and investigation documents must be made available if required by the CAA for audit or oversight purposes.
- 8) The Air Navigation Order requires the GMP who issues a LAPL medical certificate to keep, for a period of 10 years after the expiry of that certificate, the signed and completed LAPL medical application form, a copy of the completed assessment or examination forms and a copy of the medical certificate. The GMP should however transfer the LAPL medical certification records with the certificate holder's medical records in the event of a certificate holder registering with a new practice so that the new practice has the required access to that certificate holder's medical records. The CAA will treat such a transfer as compliance with the requirements under act for this purpose.
- 9) A GMP must not issue LAPL medical certificates if he/she ceases to be qualified to do so (see paragraph 1 above).
- 10) The UK Civil Aviation Authority (CAA) reserves the right at any time to cancel or suspend submissions through the CAA's LAPL Medical System by a GMP if any infringement of this guidance occurs.

I agree to the Terms and Conditions specified above.
